General Description

The New York City Mental Health Service Corps (MHSC) is a key initiative of Thrive NYC: A Mental Health Roadmap for All– a comprehensive public health approach to mental health designed to promote and protect the wellbeing of all New Yorkers. The MHSC fills the too long neglected gaps in mental health and substance use services throughout NYC by creating a corps of approximately 400 mental health clinicians placed in high-need communities. Through best practices and a better design of care, the initiative will increase the diversity of behavioral health clinicians in the workforce and strengthen care where it is needed the most.

MHSC focuses on the recruitment, training, and support of early career social workers to become fully licensed behavioral health clinicians with a specific focus on incorporating evidence-based practices in primary care and behavioral health settings throughout New York City. Through a structured supervision system and task-shifting model, clinicians are able to obtain advanced licensure through the MHSC and strengthen their own capacity to be able to provide sound behavioral health services in marginalized communities and populations. MHSC is a city-funded program housed under Hunter College, CUNY and the Research Foundation of CUNY. All MHSC staff are employees of the Research Foundation of CUNY.

The Clinical Psychologist will be the primary therapist, providing evidence-based treatments and individual therapy, for a caseload of patients in an outpatient substance use disorder setting. Working closely with a Supervising Psychologist, the incumbent will be responsible for coordinating and supporting patients' care within the clinic and for coordinating referrals to clinically indicated services outside the clinic. The Mental Health Service Corps (MHSC) will provide on-going coaching, supervision and special training and learning opportunities in key best practices.

Positions are available in Brooklyn, Staten Island, Queens, Manhattan, and the Bronx.
